How the new titles and descriptions were built

Three data sources, and every change is backed by numbers or by the product page.

1

Keyword Planner

We checked how often customers search for phrases describing the products. This shows what customers call the product.

Google Ads search terms report

48 210 real queries from your campaigns with cost, conversions and conversion value. This shows which words sell, not just which are popular.

Checked against the product page

Every sentence of the new description was checked against the product page. Descriptions contain only features confirmed on the page.

NEW TITLE STRUCTURE

Best-selling phrase + Brand and model + Key feature

Bean to cup coffee machine with grinder Demo Brand A300 Milk | with milk frother, 15 bar

- The most important phrases go in the first ~50 characters, because that is usually all Google shows in a Shopping ad.
- The brand stays in the visible part of the title, but after the phrase that sells.
- Every title stays within the 150-character limit.
- Descriptions: main phrase first, supporting phrases once each, no promotional claims.

Step 1: how customers search

Average monthly searches, Google Keyword Planner.

PHRASE	SEARCHES / MO.
coffee machine	74 000
espresso machine	22 200
bean to cup coffee machine	18 100
coffee machine with grinder	9 900
coffee machine for home	6 600
espresso machine with grinder	5 400
coffee machine with milk frother	2 900
demo brand	2 400
manual espresso machine	2 400
coffee bean machine	1 600
compact coffee machine	720
15 bar espresso machine	590

18 100

"Bean to cup coffee machine" is the biggest phrase that describes exactly this type of product.

9 900

"With grinder" is a feature customers actively search for.

2 400

The brand itself is searched regularly, so it stays in the visible part of the title.

> Volume alone is not enough: a popular phrase doesn't necessarily sell. That's why step 2 checks which phrases actually brought in sales.

Step 2: which words actually sell

Google Ads search terms report, 01.10.2025 - 30.09.2026. Phrases grouped into themes. Branded phrases excluded, since those people already know the brand.

PHRASE THEME	COST	CONV.	CONVERSION VALUE	ROAS	DECISION
bean to cup / automatic	18 420 €	31.2	82 150 €	4.5	Start of the title
with grinder	15 210 €	24.6	61 340 €	4.0	Right after “bean to cup”
portafilter / manual	11 080 €	12.3	33 870 €	3.1	Start of title (manual models)
milk frother / latte	9 640 €	9.8	24 120 €	2.5	In the title as a feature for home	6 830 €	6.2	12 480 €	1.8	Added to descriptions
compact / small	4 120 €	3.1	5 210 €	1.3	Not highlighted

82 150 €

“Bean to cup” brought in the most sales of all themes, more than plain “espresso machine”, despite lower volume.

4.5

“With grinder” returned 4.5 € in sales for every euro spent.

12 480 €

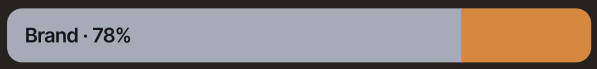

“For home” is how customers describe the machine in their own words, so it went into the descriptions.

Phrases with the highest conversion value

Individual non-branded queries that drove the most sales. These words went into the new titles and descriptions.

SEARCH TERM	CONVERSIONS	CONVERSION VALUE
bean to cup coffee machine with grinder	12.4	38 210 €
automatic coffee machine	8.1	24 970 €
manual espresso machine for home	5.2	17 340 €
coffee machine with grinder	6.0	15 880 €
coffee bean machine	2.1	7 260 €

WHERE GOOGLE ADS SALES COME FROM

874 300 € from branded phrases
250 300 € from generic phrases

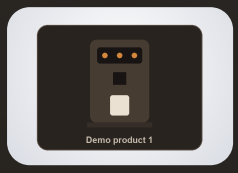

The new titles target generic phrases, i.e. customers who don't know the brand yet. That's where the most room for growth is.

WHAT WE ADDED AND REMOVED

+ “bean to cup with grinder” and “portafilter” at the start of the title
+ each model's key feature at the end of the title
+ “for home” in the descriptions
- promotional claims (“brand new”, “you'll love”) and anything not confirmed on the product page

Before and after: titles and descriptions

Highlighted: phrases chosen based on steps 1 and 2. "Before" for the description is the start of the current product-page description.
